

COMPACT

Program and Grants Information 2022–2024

In New South Wales, we are a proud multicultural society. A society in which people from all across the world see opportunity, freedom and security for themselves and their family.

There are people from more than 300 cultures, speaking some 200 different languages and dialects, and practising over 140 different religious beliefs in NSW. Yet, despite the incredible diversity of our people, we are all united in the same values and wants. Among those is a strong desire for peace and harmony – a society free from racism and hate.

I believe we have a largely peaceful and harmonious society in NSW. Although, there are fringe elements of our society that want to threaten that peace and harmony. Elements that would drive a wedge between us by using hate, fear, racism and extremist ideologies. That is why it is important we do what we can to ensure they are not permitted to fester and grow.

Instead, we need to look to our greatest strength to implement practical and meaningful solutions that will bring an end to this hate – our people. More specifically, we must look to and empower our young people to drive to achieve this and it is through the COMPACT Program that we will be able to do so.

The COMPACT Program aims to inspire and empower young people to stand up and stand united against divisive forces as our champions for community harmony. A proven model for building social cohesion and community resilience.

I am proud of the NSW Government’s commitment to investing not just in the future of our State to ensure it remains peaceful and harmonious, but in our young people to drive this change.

I look forward to welcoming new community partners to the COMPACT Alliance and joining our collective effort to be a voice and force for community harmony in New South Wales.

THE COMPACT STORY

BUILDING COMMUNITY RESILIENCE IN AN UNCERTAIN WORLD

Socially cohesive communities are more resilient communities in the face of adversity and crisis. Whether we are dealing with bushfires, floods, terrorism, or a global pandemic, we know that more connected communities are more resilient to, and recover more quickly from, adversity.

Adversity can bring out both the best and the worst in people. Unfortunately, there are fringe elements in our society who seek to exploit times of crisis to promote fear, hate, divisiveness and discord.

Alternatively, we see the best in people when communities come together across cultural and religious differences to help each other in times of need. These acts of solidarity both draw upon and strengthen our sense of community and social cohesion, and they are our most powerful response to hate and polarisation.

Established in 2015, the Multicultural NSW COMPACT (Community Partnership Action) Program was inspired by the way the people of New South Wales came together in the wake of the Martin Place siege in Sydney in December 2014.

The message from our community was clear: We stand united. We – all of us together – will not let extremists divide us.

Since then, COMPACT has operationalised the concept of community resilience by supporting an alliance of over 80 grassroots community organisations, peak NGOs, private sector partners, schools, universities, government agencies and police.

In 2018, COMPACT was independently evaluated as a “first of its kind” program that has made significant progress towards its objectives of building social cohesion and community resilience.

In 2019, the COMPACT Alliance mobilised to support local communities and young people impacted by the devastating terror attack on our neighbours and cousins in Christchurch, New Zealand.

Since 2020, bushfires and the COVID-19 pandemic have again tested our resilience as a community. The people of New South Wales have proven to be remarkably resilient. Yet we have seen extremist elements in our community seeking to incite hate and exploit the pandemic for ideological purposes.

New South Wales sets an example for the rest of the world as a peaceful and harmonious multicultural society. But we cannot take our social cohesion for granted. We live in an increasingly uncertain world, and we are buffeted by forces we cannot always control.

The task of strengthening community resilience and safeguarding social cohesion, now and into the future, requires a concerted effort across all sections of our society.

Our resilience in the face of hate and extremism can be measured by the way we respond to this threat as a unified, inclusive and democratic society. The better we respond, the better chance we have of breaking the cycle of hate and polarisation and preventing extremism in the longer term.

That is why our community and government partners have joined the COMPACT Alliance: Together, we are standing up and standing united for our peaceful and harmonious way of life.

PROGRAM-LEVEL OUTCOMES

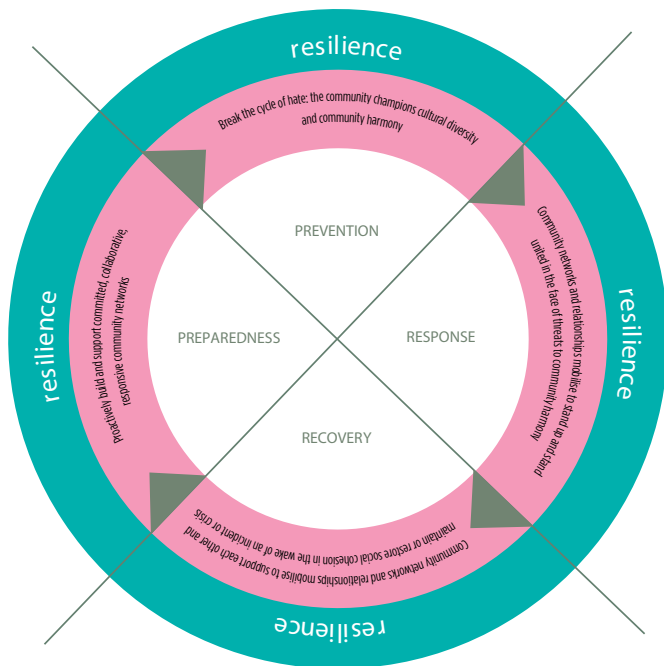

A WHOLE-OF-SOCIETY RESILIENCE-BASED APPROACH

COMPACT is a first-of-its-kind community resilience-building initiative to counter violent extremism. COMPACT recognises that, beyond the threat of violence, extremism threatens social cohesion and community harmony by promoting fear, hate and division in society.

In responding to this threat to community harmony, COMPACT takes a whole of-society approach to community resilience, where “resilience” means proactively building and maintaining strong, responsive and collaborative networks that operate across communities and sectors, and that can mobilise to respond to challenges and threats, resolve conflict and actively promote social cohesion.

This sense of resilience operates across the full continuum of risk mitigation to support community Preparedness, Prevention, Response and Recovery.

At the program-level, the collective outcomes we work towards can be described as follows:

Preparedness

Proactively build and support committed, collaborative, responsive community networks

Prevention

Break the cycle of hate: the community champions cultural diversity and community harmony

Response

Community networks and relationships mobilise to stand up and stand united in the face of threats to community harmony

Recovery

Community networks and relationships mobilise to support each other and maintain or restore social cohesion in the wake of an incident or crisis

COMPACT is a flagship program contributing to the Community Resilience strategic priority under Stronger Together, the Multicultural NSW Strategic Plan 2021-2025:

Expanding robust relationships that inspire people to foster social cohesion, stand united against divisive forces and come together in times of need.

YOUTH-LED SOLUTIONS

- COMPACT looks to young people as part of the solution, not part of the problem, for social cohesion.
- COMPACT aims to inspire and empower young people to stand up and stand united against fear, hate and division as champions for Australia's peaceful and harmonious way of life.
- COMPACT engaged an estimated 40,000 young people in its first three years, inspiring a new generation of community leaders, critical thinkers and champions for community harmony.
- COMPACT supports local solutions-based projects that bring young people together to promote positive behaviours and engage critically, creatively and constructively on local and global issues impacting on social cohesion in New South Wales.
- COMPACT recognises that, whatever may be taking place in the complex world we live in, solutions start at home. It starts with local communities working together, supporting each other, and building on the strengths of our culturally diverse success story.

Project-level objectives

Funded COMPACT partnership projects will build on the strengths of our diverse society to address one or more of the following objectives:

To inspire and empower young people to stand up and stand united against extremism, hate, fear and division as champions for community harmony.

To build robust, sustainable networks, relationships and partnerships across communities.

To support communities and build resilience to threats to community harmony in NSW arising from local or global issues.

To promote community understanding of the value and benefit of cultural diversity.

Youth engagement methods

COMPACT partnership projects can address the project objectives listed above through one or more of the following youth engagement methods:

Creative communicators: includes creative methods to amplify the voices of young people and tackle tough issues like hate and polarisation through art, music, writing, traditional and digital/social media, public speaking or performance.

Networkers & influencers: includes methods to create and sustain active, effective, networks of youth leaders, allies and influencers, in both online and offline contexts, that can activate against divisive forces and promote social cohesion.

Critical thinkers & problem solvers: includes methods to train and upskill young people to critically identify and effectively respond to threats to community harmony and resolve community conflict in online and offline contexts.

Intergenerational interpreters: includes youth-led methods to support intergenerational communication and understanding, address issues of intergenerational trauma and conflict, build resilience at the family level, and promote the value of diversity across generations.

Volunteers & humanitarians: includes methods to engage young people in volunteering, community service, charity and local and/or international humanitarian work with a clear benefit to local communities.

Community connectors: includes methods of cross-cultural, cross-regional, and interfaith engagement that bring communities together and foster trust, collaboration and cohesion.

Sports for social cohesion: includes methods to engage young people, break down barriers, reinforce positive messages, and create support networks, mentoring opportunities and positive role models.

Other innovative youth engagement methods will also be considered. Successful applications in any of these youth engagement methods will clearly demonstrate capacity and competency to engage young people of all genders and from a diverse range of cultural and religious backgrounds.

We support partnerships that bring together grassroots organisations with larger well-established organisations to facilitate capacity building and cross-sector collaboration. We also welcome partnerships that bring local and global partners together to build the capacity of local communities.

We especially encourage encourages applications that will secure in-kind resources, expertise and/or matched funding from private sector partners.

Successful applications will ideally bring together two or more partner organisations with different skill sets to support COMPACT objectives.

WORKPLAN, EVIDENCE, EVALUATION AND REVIEW

Successful COMPACT partnership proposals will demonstrate evidence for their approach and develop a comprehensive work plan, including plans for stakeholder engagement and project-level evaluation.

Funded partners will receive funding based on key milestones, with opportunities for interim evaluation and review. This allows for projects to be adaptive to evolving needs and issues.

COMPACT Program Logic – co-designed by COMPACT Alliance partners

COMPACT partnership projects will be included as part of the COMPACT program-level evaluation. The COMPACT Program Evaluation Framework has been co-designed with COMPACT Alliance partners to capture the collective outcomes of COMPACT at the program level. The COMPACT Program Logic (above) captures the parallel streams of activity occurring with the delivery of COMPACT projects for young people, and the joint activities of the COMPACT Alliance.

JOIN THE COMPACT ALLIANCE!

The COMPACT Alliance is a robust network of community partners who all share a commitment to Australia's peaceful and harmonious way of life. In addition to implementing partnership projects, COMPACT partners all participate as full members of the COMPACT Alliance.

Since 2016, the COMPACT Alliance has been implementing a program of joint activities designed to strengthen the Alliance as a resilience network and to support the development of a COMPACT Community of Practice.

The COMPACT Alliance meets regularly to progress a range of practical work items on program evaluation, practitioner training, capacity building, research showcases, safety and well-being, communications, and other areas to support good practice.

Membership in the COMPACT Alliance provides a unique opportunity to collaborate with other COMPACT partners and connect with key NSW Government agency personnel. The annual COMPACT Alliance Summit, hosted by the Minister for Multiculturalism, is a forum for showcasing initiatives, learning and adapting from shared experience, and forging new collaborations for future projects.
